

'The Boy Who Cried Bigfoot' by Scott Magoon

Learning activities Week Two

I loved hearing and seeing some of the activities you completed last week, I hope you had fun doing them! 😊 Here are some more activities based on this book to have a go at this week:

- 1) Create a map of where the boy might live and his journey to the Bigfoot. Think about what buildings there might be, what nature he would see around him and label the key places along his journey.
- 2) What other creature might the boy have tried to tell people about? Might it have been a scary monster? A bear? A wolf? Draw or create a new creature for the story and write a description about it. Think about what it looks like, what it might do and so on. Be as imaginative as you can!
- 3) How you think the boy is feeling during the story? Write a diary entry as the little boy and explain what has happened and how you are feeling about it.
- 4) Where do you think a Bigfoot might live? Make your own home for the Bigfoot. You could draw one, paint one, build one, however you would like to create a brilliant home for him!
- 5) What do you think Bigfoot's like to eat? Design/create your own meal for the Bigfoot and explain why you've made the choices you have.
